

"Fabiola Rivera is a designer and artist from Mexico City who now lives in Chicago. She loves painting large scale illustrations and gets inspired by the places she visits and lives in. She uses public spaces to connect with people and the world around her.

She really likes things like folk art, the way ancient Mesoamerican cultures made things look, and popular culture. This helps her understand the different cultures around her as a Latin American artist. Fabiola has shown her art in many galleries and projects in Mexico and Chicago."
